Printable Blank Maps

Twelve outline maps of the wine world with no names on them, so that every shape you fill in is a place you have tasted.

HOW TO USE THEM

Print any page at actual size (100%) on plain Letter paper. Each time you taste a wine, find its region on the matching map and color it in, or mark it with a dot, then write the date, the wine and a few words on the lines at the bottom of the page. If a shape puzzles you, open the atlas at the same region: the outlines follow its maps. When the page is full, tick the regions in the passport on pages 104 and 105 of the atlas.

READING THE OUTLINES

- Coast and national border
- State, province or neighbor
- Wine region, AVA or zone

Every page also has a north arrow and a scale in miles and kilometers.

Map data: Natural Earth (public domain); European wine PDO boundaries: Candiago S. et al. (2022), Scientific Data 9:394 (CC0); AVAs: UC Davis AVA Project (CC0); Australian wine zones: Wine Australia (CC BY 4.0); Argentina, Chile and South Africa boundaries: geoBoundaries (CC BY 3.0 IGO); vineyard areas in New Zealand and South Africa traced from © OpenStreetMap contributors (ODbL). Outlines are simplified for drawing and are not legal boundaries.

The World's Wine Belt

Coasts and borders 30° and 50° north and south

Most of the world's wine grows between the dashed lines, 30° to 50° from the equator. Color each country once you have tasted one of its wines.
